· FRAGRANT WATERS . MURMUR

That the result of the Interport Rifle Match seems to show, allowing for all supposed them on. That the local Volunteers are apparently getting properly consituted, so far as rules and regulations are concerned, and the agitation over the big scheme has undoubtedly done good. That I hear a fair number have already been sworn in as members of the newly-reconstituted Artillery Corps, and that Captain McCallum will soo his Battery in fairly good form before he takes his well-earned farlough.

That the meeting held to form the Hongkong Association passed off as well as could possibly have been expected, and the irrelevant matter talked was confined to a very small minority.

That the efforts of the Provisional Committee to put things in train were accepted by the meeting, the Association was duly formed, and a small Working Committee was appointed to draw up rules to be submitted later on.

That the Chairman's avoidance of anything like antagonism to the Government was fully appreciated by those present, and the inauguration of this public movement may be set down as satisfactory and

That it is a pity the idea should have been entertained that the China Association could deal efficiently with all local mutters here, and that therefore the Hongkong Association was not wanted.

That there is no reason why every member of the Hongkong Association should not also become a member of the China Association, or why the two bodies should not work amicably together upon any subject which interests both.

That it would be a waste of words in these days to show how much greater weight the opinion of a properly-constituted body carries than the mere expression of opinion by individuals or even the spasmodic outcome of an occasional meeting of residents.

That much depends upon the moderate and sensible conduct of this Association, and I would not be surprised to see great results within a short time if the proper constitutional means are fairly and persistently employed.

That bluster and fuss will never accomplish any good result.

That the new light on Waglan has been lit and shown amid quite a shower courtesies, civilities, and congratulations. That D'Aguilar Light, although 'fixed,' must now be moved away in due course. That the comparison drawn between the cost of Wagian and Gap Rock Lights is apt to be made without regard to the peculiar conditions of the sites and of the

But it is not all in public life a more get Clements Tonic only, as many swindles are pre-ordained survival of the fittest, in this matter of interruptions to elequence. As we have already observed, many really great orators were put out and shoved out of gear, for the moment at least, by interruptions, and yet the speeches survived the perturbed and bungled moment, and will live, so far as speeches can live, for all time. We need hardly say that in the House of Commons interruption is especially sharp and thoughtless and rude. Yet we have an idea that any amount of interruption is better for a young speaker who has anything in him than the utter and absolute indifference with which the average declaimer is usually received by the House of Representatives at Washington. In this conviction we may note that it is a comfort to think that no young speaker of any merit in our House of following notice of the China Review:-

The present publication, judging by the number now before us, is intended to occupy a position, as regards China and the neighbouring countries, some what similar to that which has been filled in India by the Calcutta Keview. The great degree of attention that has been bostowed of late years upon the investigation of Chinese literature, antiquities, and social developments, to sav nothing of linguistic studies, has led to the accumulation of important stores of information, rendering some such channel of publicity as is now provided extremely desirable : and contributions of much interest may 'sirly be looked or from the members of the foreign consular services, the Chinese Customs' corps, and the missionary body, among whom a high degree of Chinese acholarship is now assiduously cultivated. and who are severally represented in the first number of the Review by papers highly creditable to their respective authors . . . Some translations from Chinese novels and plays are marked by both accuracy and freshness of style; and an account of the career of the Chinese poet-statesman of the eleventh century, Su Tung-p'o, by Mr. E. C. Bowra, is not only historically valuable, but is also distinguished by its literary grace. Boside notices of new books relating to China and the East, which will be a useful feature of the Review, if carried out with punctuality and detail, we are glad to notice that 'Notes' and 'Queries' are destined to find a place in its pages also. It is to be hoped that this opening for contributions on Chinese subjects may evoke a similar degree of literary real to that which was displayed during the lifetime of its prede-cessor in the field, and that the China Review
